Note

- *Play each person once before replaying that same person again.
- *Play for a rating at home instead of a club meeting with someone you play regularly and let DB know the result.
- *Tied positions for ratings will be determined on number of games played.
- *If you have any suggestions on a rating system that you think will work let DB know. At the moment we will work on win loss ratios and try to control the number of games people play.
- * The important aspect of this rating system is that everyone plays regularly (attends montly meetings).

Good luck and Job tovodamitch Tovarich's

OFF BOARD OBSERVERS REPORT

Unfortunately, for the month of may our monthly club meeting had to be cancelled due to a lack of interest. That's because most of us who played in Army Groups South's first tournament got 7KIAed when we finally rumbled in at a time well after that to which we had been instructed. So playing the following weekend after the tournament was totally unrealistic.

It was Obvious to all in attendance that our first Vic tournament was a success. Fun was had by all and the Saturday night BBQ was a great way to unwind after a solid two days of victories and defeats. Unfortunately the unwashed hordes from Sydney (Dave Bishop and Paul Hassler) managed to take back the trophy to Sydney (won by Paul, who showed us all that he really isn't quite ready for the nickname Paul Hasbeen).

And what a beauty the trophy was, kindly painted to perfection by Mark (you cheated) Walters. If you like trophies then Mark's SS Obersturmbannfurher would have looked excellent on the mantle piece. Talking of trophies, we are hoping to secure a trophy for our Squad Leader of the year, that is the player who is at the top of our ratings at the end of May next year. Something for us all to aim at and keep us attending those monthly meeting.

To all those who helped organise our tournament, well done! A special thanks must be given to Andrew Rodgers and his girlfriend Helen who invited us into their home with open arms.

News from Syndey is that the boys from up there were that impressed with our home grown scenario "Touche", developed by Jamie and Steve that they wish to use it in their October tournament, "Octobear". Well done, guys!

Those who aren't aware as yet, KGP2 has hit the stores and some of our hard core players were punching pieces out (and wanting to pack in other campaign games) the day it hit our shores. After a brief look through the module I can say that it looks impressive and am itching to play the scenario with a huge number of Panthers.

If you have anything you would like to write for our Monthly Crossfire let DB know, it doesn't matter how trivial or exaggerated it is. Stay tuned next month for a Red Barricades campaign commentary being undertaken by some of our die hards. So far after only five months play only five campaign days have been completed. That dedication or perhaps madness for you.

Roll low, DB
